PAW'S CORNER

by Sam Mazzotta

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I'm invited to a Yankee swap party with friends I met at the dog park over the past year. The theme is not presents for humans, but for our dogs. I don't want to get a gift that everyone else is buying, so what are the most popular pet items right now? - Cheri in Somerville, Massachusetts

DEAR CHERI: If the item really is popular, I bet people won't mind duplicate gifts. For those not in the know, a Yankee swap (known as a Santa swap in other parts of the country) is a group gift-giving event where participants each bring a gift, then draw numbers to take turns picking a gift from somebody else - or opt to swap their gift for another gift. Things can get a bit wild, but that's how we party in the Northeast. The gifts are usually inexpensive. Concentrate on buying a practical gift that will make a dog more comfortable or happy. A box of treats, a raincoat or sweater, spare booties, a collar and leash, a chew toy or feeding bowl, or a stylish item like a bandanna or a bow tie. If your dog likes or needs something, then your friends' dogs are almost certain to like or need the same thing. And, since people rarely end up with exactly what they want at a Yankee swap, save a few dollars to buy something you think your dog will really like after the party.

People go on vacations to forget things - and when they open their suitcase, they find that they did.

• Don't throw away that damaged garden hose.
Here are three great ideas:

- 1) Use as a weatherstrip along the bottom of your garage door.
- 2) Use sections to protect the blades on your ice skates.
- 3) Use as a safety edge
on your saws in the shop. Cut to fit, and slip it over the blade.

What Christmas Is All About

Read: Luke 2:8-14

There were shepherds living out in the fields nearby, keeping watch over their flocks at night Luke 2:8

Fifty years ago A Charlie Brown Christmas was first broadcast on American television. Some network executives thought it would be ignored, while others worried that quoting the Bible would offend viewers. Some wanted its creator, Charles Schulz, to omit the Christmas story, but Schulz insisted it stay in. The program was an immediate success and has been rebroadcast every year since 1965.

When Charlie Brown, the frustrated director of the children's Christmas play, is discouraged by the commercial spirit of the holiday season, he asks if anyone can tell him the real meaning of Christmas. Linus recites Luke 2:8-14 including the words, "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men" (vv. 11-14 kjv). Then Linus says, "That's what Christmas is all about, Charlie Brown."

During this season filled with our own doubts and dreams, it's good to ponder afresh God's great love expressed in the familiar story of Joseph, Mary, the baby Jesus, and the angels who announced the Savior's birth. That's what Christmas is all about. By David C. McCasland

Father in heaven, as we approach Christmas, may we grasp in a deeper way Your amazing gift to us.

God broke into human history to offer us the gift of salvation!

Subject: Christmas Cookie Rules

If you eat a Christmas cookie fresh out of the oven, it has no calories because everyone knows, that the first cookie is the test and thus is calorie free.

If you drink a diet soda after eating your second cookie, it also has no calories because the diet soda cancels out the cookie calories.

If a friend comes over while you are making your Christmas cookies and needs to sample, you must sample with your friend, because your friend's first cookie is calorie free. (Rule #1) It would be rude to let your friend eat alone therefore this makes your cookie calorie free also.

Any calories consumed during the frosting of the Christmas cookies will be used up because it takes many calories to lick excess frosting from a knife without cutting your tongue.

Any calories consumed while walking around will fall to your feet and eventually fall off as you move. This is due to the gravity and the density of the caloric mass.

Cookies colored red or green have very few calories, red ones have 3 and green ones have 5 - one calorie for each letter. Make more red cookies!

Cookies eaten while watching Miracle on 34th Street have no calories because they are part of the entertainment package and not part of one's personal fuel.

As always, cookie pieces contain no calories because the process of breaking causes calorie leakage.

Any cookie consumed from someone else's plate has no calories since the calories rightfully belong to the other person and will cling to their plate. We all know how calories like to CLING!

Any cookies consumed while feeling stressed have no calories because cookies used for medicinal purposes NEVER have calories. It's the rule!!!!!!

Proper Disposal Household Hazardous Waste

A Guide to Doing it right in Lawrence and Mercer Counties

What is Household Hazardous Waste (HHW)?

HHW is any waste generated from your home that exhibits one or more of the following characteristics:

- Toxic. That is harmful or fatal to wildlife and humans,
- Ignitable. Capable of catching fire,
- Corrosive. Burning/irritating to human tissue or the surface of a material,
- Reactive. Capable of causing toxic gas release or explosion.

Many products commonly found in your home are toxic and similar to regulated hazardous wastes produced by business and industry. There are five major categories of HHW. With some examples, they include:

- Household Cleaners. Oven and toilet bowl cleaners, bleach, disinfectants, etc.
- Paint Products. Oil-based paints, thinners/turpentine, strippers, and wood preservatives.
- Automotive Products. Oil, antifreeze, batteries, transmission fluid, etc.
- Pesticide Products. Insecticides, herbicides, rodent poisons, flea collars and shampoos.
- Miscellaneous. Photography chemicals, pool chemicals, glues/adhesives, and rechargeable batteries.

Why are Household Hazardous Wastes a Concern?

When used as directed and with the appropriate precautions, these products pose minimal risk to our health and well-being.

However, improper use, handling, storage, and/or disposal can result in significant environmental and human health problems, including death. Among other problems, improper management can result in poisoning, toxic fumes caused by mixing chemicals, fires or explosions, and adverse health effects from chemical exposure.

One of the worst ways to dispose of HHW is to dump it down the drain or directly into the environment. Wastewater treatment plants are not designed to process many types of hazardous materials. In addition to potential problems at the treatment plant, these materials are released directly into the environment.

Throwing these products into your trash and sent to a landfill is not an effective solution either. HHW in a landfill can still pollute the environment.

How can I become more Aware?

Be sure to read the labels of your products. Hazardous products are required to have the words danger, warning, or caution on their labeling. The word danger is used to indicate the most hazardous products with caution used for the least hazardous. Other key words to look for include: poison, flammable, reactive, irritant, caustic, volatile, corrosive and toxic. The labels will usually include information such as proper usage, known hazards, what to do in case of an emergency, and sometimes disposal.

How can I Reduce the Amount of Household Hazardous Waste in my Home?

These are products that make our lives easier and in many instances are necessary. Difficulties arise when these materials become a waste that needs to be disposed. The most effective solution is to reduce the amount of waste that we need to dispose of. Fortunately, there are many ways for us to reduce our waste.

- When shopping, resist the urge to buy more than you actually need. Many products seem cheaper when you buy a larger quantity, but that economy size is not so economical when you consider disposal of the leftovers.
- Use up what you buy.
- Share or give away your excess to family, friends, or community groups.
- Purchase and use less toxic alternatives. There are many commercial brands available and you can make your own from common household ingredients such as white vinegar, borax, baking soda, and mild detergent. You can find a variety of recipes online for everything from air fresheners to glass and window cleaners.
- Take it to a HHW collection event or operation.

What do I do with this Stuff?

- Take steps to reduce the amount of waste that must be dealt with by following the previously discussed measures.
- Recycle what you can. Relatively convenient recycling options exist for some materials such as motor oil and antifreeze. Websites such as www.earth911.com can provide a list of options for these specific materials.
- Take your HHW to a special collection event or directly to a permitted HHW operation.
- Drop off and curbside options exist for residents of Lawrence and Mercer counties.
- The Lawrence-Mercer Recycling/Solid Waste Department can provide you with a list of options and scheduled events as well as answer your questions.

Outdoor Opportunities

By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

Once You Make the Shot, the Fun is Over and the Work Begins

(Part 2 • Part 1 in Dec. 6 edition)

If you're a parent or grandparent, never forget your children or grandchildren are watching, listening, and learning from you at all times, whether you realize it or not. That applies to all aspects of life, including hunting. Even before I was able to legally hunt at age 12 in 1975 (there was no Mentored Youth Hunting Program back then), I learned a great deal of "woodsmanship" from my dad and maternal grandfather after I eagerly started accompanying them on hunts as a 5-year old. I can't remember either one of them ever formally saying, "Now, this is important, so keep an eye out for this," but I soon learned how to identify and to watch out for drag trails, the distinct evidence another hunter successfully brought out a deer at a certain spot. (This gives you a fairly good idea of how many deer are being harvested from a given area.)

When there is no snow, you can tell a drag mark by the way the leaves are disturbed and usually there are periodic deer hairs and/or blood droplets left where the carcass was dragged over rocks and other debris on the ground. When there is snow, you can easily pick out the distinct, press-downed "slide mark" through the woods. Typically, the trail through the snow is marked by incidental deer hairs and drops of blood shed by the eviscerated carcass as it is pulled along. Over time, I learned to look out for less obvious signs where a hunter had used a child's plastic sled or a plastic deer drag (a rolled up 4-foot by 18-inch piece of hard plastic that's attached underneath a deer carcass by weaving a piece of rope over-top, much like a shoelace pattern) to make their drag go easier with or without snow. The advent of lightweight, collapsible deer carts about 25-years ago revolutionized "dead animal movement" over significant distances and I've learned to watch for the distinct tread patterns left by a loaded cart pulled through the woods.

Only once in my lifetime, when I was very young, did I witness the quintessential act of four men carrying a very respectable buck tied to a 10-foot pole they toted on their shoulders to get it out of the swampy area where it had fallen. Regardless of how you retrieve your harvested game animal from where it fell back to your vehicle, it involves hard work and should not be left to happenstance. Unfortunately, there are typically several PA hunters who experience heart attacks each year from the physical exertion of dragging their deer, and tragically some of those incidents prove fatal. Having a plan, the proper equipment, and other hunters available to assist in your game recovery are key to making this part safe and within your physical capabilities.

2004 HONDA Pilot, runs good, inspected, 3rd row, $1,950 obo; 2010 Cruze, runs good, inspected, motor replaced, around 140K on used motor, serious inquiries only, $3,700 obo; 724 971-8869

Once you get your deer back to your vehicle, it can be a chore to load it in the bed of your truck, especially if you are by yourself and it's a big deer. A tip I picked up a few years ago and incorporate now is to bring a ladder. I don't have a ladder rack on my truck cap for attaching an extension ladder, so I bring my collapsible, expandable aluminum ladder, which fits inside the cap. Once you get your deer back to the vehicle, lay the ladder down on the ground with one end near the dropped tailgate. Load your deer onto the ladder and tie it on securely. Pick up the end of the ladder near the vehicle and lean it up on the tailgate. Go to the other end of the ladder, pick it up and slide the entire ladder and attached deer into the bed. Voila! Your deer is now in your truck bed for the trip home or to the processor of your choice.

Sometimes, things happen when it comes to deer recovery. Back in 1984, while at Penn State, I harvested a doe near the top of Jack's Mountain in Mifflin County that I had to carry over my shoulders for a hundred yards to get it down across an exposed boulder field. Then in 1991, I had a big doe run 65-yards after my shot and expire halfway across Crooked Creek in Armstrong County. She floated downstream for 50-minutes and over a half-mile before I could get her out of the water. Hard work is part of the hunting experience at times and makes you appreciate the venison and memories that much more afterward! ©WBB 2019

Are You Covered?

In time of emergency, the last thing you should worry about is if your emergency ambulance transportation will be financially covered. Insurance carriers may cover only a portion of your emergency transportation.

With all the recent changes in HEALTHCARE it's more important than ever to have an ambulance membership.

Strange But True

by Samantha Weaver

- Half of all Americans live within 50 miles of their birthplace.
- At some point you've almost certainly heard a coward described as "lily-livered," but did you ever wonder where that expression came from? It was once believed that the seat of courage in the human body was the liver; therefore, someone who was timid presumably lacked blood in the liver, causing that organ to become white.

- Karaoke and karate: Other than the fact that they are both from Japan, you wouldn't think they have much in common. However, they both have the same root word, "kara," which means empty. "Oke" means "voice" and "te" means "hand," hence, "karaoke" is "empty voice," and "karate" is "empty hand."
