• On a home improvement kick? You're not alone. Here's a wall-papering tip from way back: If your wallpaper is applied with adhesive, add a few drops of food coloring to the paste. It will give it a slight tint that will not be visible when dried. Now you can be sure that the adhesive makes it all the way to the edge of the paper for best results!

Register Rock

We are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses. — Hebrews 12:1

Today's Scripture: Hebrews 11:32-40

6" OVAL, 30' long,
stainless steel chimney
liner, new, for fireplace
insert, $350 obo; 724 674-1308 8-21

Along the old Oregon Trail in Idaho there is a marker—a giant lava boulder known locally as Register Rock. It's located in an area which was one of the favorite overnight camping areas for westbound immigrants who traveled the trail in the 19th century.

Travelers often inscribed their names on the rock as a memorial to their passage. Register Rock stands as a monument to their courage and tenacity.

When I think of Register Rock, I think of other pilgrims who have passed by us on their journey.
Hebrews 11 lists some of those hardy souls—Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, and Samuel, to name a few.

But there are other more recent pilgrims: my mother and father, my fifth-grade Sunday school teacher Mrs. Lincoln, my youth leader John Richards, my mentors Ray Stedman and Howard Hendricks, and a host of others I could name. They may not have inscribed their names on rocks, but they're written in my memory.

The author of Hebrews reminds us to remember "pilgrims" who have gone before us, especially those "who have spoken the Word of God" to us and to consider "the outcome of their conduct" (Heb.
13:7). And, most important, he encourages us to follow their faith. By: David H. Roper

Outdoor Opportunities By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

Some Things in Life Really Stink, Literally!

When it comes to reading The Bible, I'm naturally drawn to the Book of Proverbs on a regular basis. I find the wisdom contained in Proverbs is as applicable today as when it was written almost 3,000 years ago. Take for instance Proverbs 30:18-19(NIV). It states, "There are three things that are too amazing for me, four that I do not understand. The way of an eagle in the sky, the way of a snake on a rock, the way of a ship on the high seas, and the way of a man with a young woman." I have to admit, when I read those verses, one of the first thoughts that comes to my mind is, "I completely agree, but what about...?" By that, I humbly mean my list of things that are too amazing for me personally is way more than three and when it comes to things that I do not understand, four doesn't even scratch the surface. I find I'm awed by things found in nature that either amaze me or I don't understand on almost a daily basis. Some of those things are pretty simple and fairly common, but I still don't get it.

Take for instance, when it comes to dogs. We love our German Shepherd and like most dog owners, we treat him and talk to him like he's just another member of the family, almost human. However, about once a year, for a reason that I do not understand, he feels compelled to remind us he's still a dog by rolling in something that smells totally foul and downright repulsive. Like most dogs, he typically rolls in it so the offensive substance is concentrated around his neck and ears, and it's rather comical how pleased and proud he is of his new fragrance. That is, until he comes back, we get a whiff of him, and he gets reprimanded for his indiscretion before getting a much-needed bath. Well, recently his internal clock must have told him, "I haven't rolled in something disgusting in quite a while to get myself in trouble". So, on Saturday night, July 25, I saw him flop on the ground in the darkness and do that all too familiar side-to-side roll about 60-yards away in our backyard when I took him out one last time before bed.

Now, we've been blessed, over the course of 20+ years living in our home, we've had very few skunk encounters. Maybe, it's because the significant populations of raccoons and opossums we see on a regular basis on our property don't leave much room for skunks. Whatever the reason, we've averaged one skunk sighting about once every three years (I'm talking single digits over the past 22-years and I'm perfectly fine with that). Well, on July 25, one must have passed through our place, left some of its essence for who knows why, and our dog felt compelled to roll in it. Now, back in the Fall of 1992 at our previous home in Armstrong County, we had a Golden Retriever who took a full blast from an adult skunk that I had to deal with and you could definitely smell her repugnant phew from over 25-yards away. Fortunately, our German Shepherd didn't smell nearly as bad, but he spent the night in the garage and received a much-needed bath on Sunday, July 26, before he was allowed to return to his "family dog" privileges.

Well, you might have thought my brain would have registered the fact there was potentially a skunk now frequenting our area and I should be more vigilant. Nope, didn't happen. The following Friday night, July 31, I was watering our garden just before dark and as usual, our German Shepherd was lying nearby watching my back. I was just about finished when I caught the dog taking off in a flash, out of the corner of my eye. I immediately called him back vigorously, but within mere seconds he met up with a young skunk, got sprayed, and came running back sporting his new "Pepé Le Pew" fragrance. He made a few unsuccessful attempts to wipe the smell off on the ground before I herded him to his pen. I hosed him down thoroughly before he had the privilege of spending his first entire night in his 10½-year lifetime, out in the pen. Saturday morning, August 1, it was outdoor bath time once again. Back in 1992, I used tomato juice on our golden Retriever to cut the smell. Now, after consulting the Internet, our German Shepherd initially got sprayed with hydrogen peroxide and then rinsed with water after 15-minutes. Next, came a thorough spraying with distilled white vinegar, which was also left on for 15-minutes before rinsing with the hose. Finally, he was rigorously lathered up with Dawn dish soap to complete his bath. Afterwards, he was completely skunk-free and once again allowed back in the house to return to his rather privileged life.

Hopefully, he's gained the wisdom to leave skunks alone in the future and I've gained the good sense to take him to/from his pen on a leash whenever it's dark. Some things in life really stink, quite literally, and skunk essence is one of them. That's not found in Proverbs, but it is a fact I definitely understand and I'm amazed that skunks have that olfactory defensive capability. God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors! ©WBB 2020

• Bright strips of tape can be a great safety addition to the edges of stairs. Even better is bright, textured, reflective tape for low-light areas, like basements or porch steps. The bright color makes the edges visible in daylight; the reflection does the same at night. A bit of texture makes sure they're not slippery. ©2020 King Features

Hammer Natural Prints With Garden Leaves

Green leaves just don't get the attention they deserve. Usually, we "ooh" and "aah" in the fall at the emerging splashy colors of crimson and golden leaves on trees and bushes. But there is infinite variety in the green and the gray of those leaves on trees, vegetable plants and bushes that continually grow, shade and add a natural umbrella in gardens and parks in the hottest of summer days. Pick a handful of fresh leaves and sprouting greens from your trees, shrubs and vegetable garden, and look at them with your kids through a magnifying glass. Observe their intricate patterns and delicate design, and then print them onto fabric with a zany technique using a hammer from the toolbox and your child's muscle and energy.

First, collect the fresh green leaves. Ferns from an indoor floral bouquet also work well. Then, decide what you would like to print, such as a plain white or cream-colored cotton fabric T-shirt, an apron, potholder or library book bag. Cover a hard, flat surface such as a picnic table or wooden breadboard with plain paper bags. Set the fabric to be printed on top. If using a T-shirt or tote bag, place a sheet of wax paper or cardboard inside the shirt or bag.

Arrange a leaf or fern on the fabric (secure it in place with small pieces of masking tape, if you wish), and cover with a sheet of wax paper. Hammer over the wax-paper-covered leaf until its color has been absorbed into the fabric. It's important that you hit every part of the leaf to release the natural pigments. Remove the leaf or fern and wax paper to reveal the natural image. Colors vary in intensity, so you may wish to test several varieties on a piece of scrap fabric first.

Repeat the process with additional leaves. Try it with a few flowers, too, and see how the beautiful colors from nature appear. Label each print with the name of the tree, plant or flower using a permanent marker.

Note: The natural pigments may eventually fade. Wash fabric in cold water.

Extra Idea: You also may use paper instead of fabric to create lovely stationery, gift tags or bookmarks.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING Grilled Sausage and Pepper Pizza

Topped with sweet Italian sausage and two kinds of peppers, this homemade pizza is so delicious.

- Flour
- 1 pound pizza dough
  - 2 teaspoon olive oil
  - 2 small peppers (1 red and 1 orange)
  - 2 sweet Italian sausage links
  - 4 ounces part-skim mozzarella
  - 1/2 small red onion
  - 3 pepperoncini peppers

1. Heat grill to medium-high. Lightly dust a baking sheet with flour. Working on a floured surface, shape the pizza dough into one 14-inch round and place on the prepared sheet. Brush the top with 1 teaspoon oil.
2. Place the peppers and sausages (cut-side down) on the grill and cook, covered, for 3 minutes. Turn and grill, covered, until the sausages are cooked through and the peppers are tender, 2 to 3 minutes more. Transfer the sausages and peppers to a cutting board and slice.
3. Transfer the pizza dough to the grill, oiled-side down, and cook, covered, until the top begins to bubble and the bottom is crisp, about 2 minutes. Brush the top of the dough with the remaining 1 teaspoon oil.
4. Turn over, sprinkle the grilled side with half of the mozzarella, then the onion. Top with the peppers, sausage and pepperoncinis, then sprinkle with the remaining cheese. Grill, covered, until the bottom is golden brown and crisp, and the mozzarella has melted, about 3 minutes. Transfer to a cutting board and cut into pieces. Makes 4 servings.

TIP: To make this pizza indoors, split the dough in half and shape into two 8-inch rounds.

Paws Corner

by Sam Mazzotta

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Why does my Great Dane pass so much noxious air? – James K., Syracuse, New York

DEAR JAMES: Hoo boy. Great Danes are notorious for passing gas. And because they're big dogs, well, it's impossible not to notice. Part of the reason is that they often are prone to digestive issues and can be sensitive to some varieties of dog food. Talk to your dog's veterinarian about this, as he or she will have some suggestions for reducing flatulence. The No. 1 recommendation will be a change to a different brand of dog food. Try introducing the new food gradually, replacing part of its current food with the new brand and increasing the ratio of old to new. Note whether its gas symptoms diminish, or if there's no change. Theories abound as to why Great Danes and other large breeds like Bull Mastiffs rip so much stinky air. Fermentation of digesting food in the large intestine is one. Dry dog foods with a lot of grain filler may make this worse. If your dog is fed table scraps, even occasionally, this could contribute to the problem, as human food tends to be higher in fat with lots of spices. Large breeds also are very susceptible to bloat, so stay aware of your dog's physical condition. When the stomach swells up with excess gas it can be very painful and put the dog at risk of gastric torsion, which requires immediate surgery. Labored breathing, excessive drooling, vomiting or an enlarged abdomen are among the symptoms of bloat. Take your dog to the emergency vet right away if you notice any of these symptoms. ©King Features

• "Ironing intricate sleeves or other difficult shapes can be made easier with the use of an oven mitt. Slip the mitt over your hand, put your hand on one side of a fabric to create a flat area to iron. Use care and go slowly, and you'll get a good press." – E.R. in Missouri
