The Mercy Of God

Read: Psalm 31:9-15

Have mercy on me, O Lord, for I am in trouble; my eye wastes away with grief, yes, my soul and my body!
Psalm 31:9

Today marks the anniversary of the terrorist attacks in the US on September 11, 2001. It's hard to think about that date without mental images of the destruction, grief, and loss that swept over America and the world following those tragic events. The loss of thousands of lives was compounded by the depth of loss felt corporately—a lost sense of security as a country. The sorrow of loss, personal and corporate, will always accompany the memory of the events of that day.

Those horrific events are not the only painful memories of September 11. It also marks the anniversary of my father-in-law's death. Jim's loss is felt deeply within our family and his circle of friends.

No matter what kind of sorrow we experience, there is only one real comfort—the mercy of God. David, in his own heartache, cried to his heavenly Father, "Have mercy on me, O Lord, for I am in trouble; my eye wastes away with grief, yes, my soul and my body!" (Ps. 31:9). Only in the mercy of God can we find comfort for our pain and peace for our troubled hearts.

In all losses, we can turn to the true Shepherd, Jesus Christ, who alone can heal our brokenness and grief. By: Bill Crowder

We have a Friend who'll never leave, Who's closer than a brother; He's there to meet our deepest needs, To comfort like no other. —Sper

When God permits suffering,
He also provides comfort.

• Sociologists have discovered an interesting correlation between economic health and women's clothing: The worse the economy, the longer women's skirts become, while the better the economy, the shorter they rise.

Paws Corner

by Sam Mazzotta
DEAR PAW'S CORNER: My neighbor, when she's doing yardwork, routinely puts her cat into something that looks like a chicken coop. It has a screen enclosure and a little wooden house. I'm very worried that the cat is too hot sitting in the enclosure and will get injured. Should I tell her to keep her cat inside?

– Worried Neighbor in Wichita
DEAR WORRIED: Your neighbor is probably putting the cat inside a cat enclosure – or maybe a repurposed chicken coop. Cat enclosures are getting very popular, especially in the cities and suburbs. These are a good way for an indoor cat to spend some time outdoors without the risk of running away, getting lost or being attacked by another animal. It can reduce exposure to fleas and ticks, too.

If the cat has a shady place to hide from the sun while inside the shelter, and a bowl of fresh water, it is just fine to be in there for short periods (an hour or two). Since your neighbor is outside and within sight of the cat, it's clear that she is keeping an eye on it.

If you want to have a conversation about it, be polite. "That's a neat enclosure; what a great way for your cat to get outside for a while!" is perhaps the best ice-breaker in this case. Otherwise, if the cat does not appear distressed and is sitting or lying calm and alert, then there's nothing to worry about, especially if your neighbor brings the cat inside after finishing the yardwork. If you have serious concerns (the cat is in the enclosure 24/7, looks very distressed or unhealthy), consider striking up a conversation or, if you're uncomfortable doing that, contacting animal control.

Outdoor Opportunities By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

Different Options for Fall Excursions: The Panhandle Trail (Part 1 of 4)

You've probably heard the expression, "familiarity breeds contempt." It is a succinct way of saying, "extensive knowledge of or close association with someone or something leads to a loss of respect for them or it." To put it in everyday jargon, "you can get in a rut." With the lingering persistence of the COVID-19 coronavirus and the necessary pandemic precautions we're all forced to take, it seems like now more than ever, most folks are feeling like they're stuck in a rut in many aspects of their lives. That can even apply to our outdoor recreation, one of the few respites we have from the daily pressures of these times, after you've gone to the same place over-and-over to "get away from it all" for a while.

Don't get me wrong. I love hiking in McConnells Mills State Park, paddling the Shenango River, biking the Stavich Bike Trail, and walking at Cascade and Pearson Parks. However, when you keep going to the same place, you can grow weary and jaded from doing "the same old thing." That's why I'd like to share several different options over the next few weeks. Ones you may not have previously considered, where you might want to go to pedal, paddle, or perambulate. (If you're not familiar with the word: perambulate, it's an old English and rather fancy way to say "walk," that's defined "to stroll through the countryside in a leisurely manner," and doesn't sound as rigorous and demanding as "hike." All four locations I'm going to share are roughly within an hour's drive of Lawrence County, so they represent opportunities to get away for a short time, but it won't take too long getting there.

Here in week one, please allow me to introduce you to the Panhandle Trail. This lesser known 29.5-mile rails-to-trails project runs roughly east-to west from the Pittsburgh suburbs over to Weirton, West Virginia. In the process, it traverses portions of Allegheny County, PA; Washington County, PA; and Hancock County, WV and provides an excellent venue for bicyclists and walkers to get out and do their thing safely. The Allegheny County, PA and Hancock County, WV portions are hard-packed gravel/ cinders, much like you'd find on an "old school" high-school running track and provide good surfaces for riding and walking. However, the majority of the trail runs through Washington County, PA and there the Panhandle Trail is smooth, relatively new asphalt, which is an excellent riding and walking surface. Cyclists will feel comfortable riding their road, mountain, hybrid, BMX, touring, cruiser, recumbent, or tandem bicycles on the Panhandle Trail. The only rough spots with loose gravel, mud puddles, and a few potholes are in Allegheny County near the road crossing in Oakdale and just before the Washington County line; and both unpleasant patches are less than one hundred yards long. The Panhandle Trail is also very "walker friendly" for leisurely walkers, speed walkers, individuals pushing strollers or pulling wagons, families with small children, and dog walkers with their pets on a leash.

Our son lives and works in Allegheny County, and because his employer's schedule has him off every other Friday, we often get together on those days to do things together outdoors. Once we learned the parameters for outdoor activities under COVID-19 restrictions, we did our initial bike ride of 2020 on April 10 tackling the Stavich Bike Trail from New Castle to Struthers, OH. Knowing the hardest part of getting back on a bicycle after being away from it for an extended period is not the cardio, or even the repetitive leg exertions, but rather getting one's posterior re-acustomed to sitting on a bicycle seat for extended periods, we decided to ride the entire Panhandle Trail in thirds spread out over the Spring. We met at the trail's eastern terminus at Walkers Mill (roughly 2 miles west of the Carnegie exit off I-79) back on April 24. We rode roughly 18-miles that day, heading out to the Primrose/ Nobletown Road crossing by the Fort Cherry Ambulance Station and back. That day's ride took us through Oakdale and McDonald, along with passing under the Montour Trail Trestle and the new I-576 toll road bridge, which is currently under construction and will eventually connect I-79 by the National Cemetery with I-376 at the Pittsburgh International Airport. (I'll continue my narrative on the Panhandle Trail next week.)

First Baptist Church's 2020 Sportsmen's Dinner is Cancelled - If you haven't heard, Gary Weimer announced on August 24 that the Organizational Committee has made the difficult decision to cancel their annual event for the first time in over 20-years. But they want everyone to know it will be back in 2021!

Never Forget 9-11!! - We would be remiss if we did not remember the events and lives lost September 11, 2001 on this, the 19th anniversary of that infamous day. God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors! ©WBB 2020

ROMANS 14:8-9

If we live, we live for the Lord; and if we die, we die for the Lord. So, whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord. For this very reason, Christ died and returned to life so that he might be the Lord of both the dead and the living.
