1. Who released a song (and an album by the same name) with the title "Beaucoups of Blues"?
  2. Name the singer who released the first English-language version of "All Alone Am I."
  3. Who was Fernando?
  4. Were the Righteous Brothers really related?
  5. Name the song that contains this lyric: "Before we're through I want to tell you that I adore you, And always do."
- *****ANSWERS*****
1. Ringo Starr, in 1970. It was his first solo single after leaving the Beatles.
  2. Brenda Lee, in 1962. It was originally written in Greek. Lee was 18 at the time and had been the sole financial support for her family since she was 10 years old.
  3. "Fernando," written originally in Swedish by ABBA for one of its group members, was a bartender in Stockholm.
  4. No. Bill Medley and Bobby Hatfield met when a previous group (the Paramours) disbanded.

• Remember that as temperatures drop and layers of clothing increase, children in a car seat need special consideration. Remove heavy coats before strapping in a small child or baby. Winter wear can compress during an accident, and it interferes with the straps.

• Just in time for soup season (and my new year's resolutions), here's a great fat swap: Drain and rinse 2 cups of white beans and puree with a cup of no-sodium vegetable broth. You can use this as a thickener in place of heavy cream for soups and stews.—JoAnn

Read: Acts 8:1-8

Those who were scattered went everywhere preaching the Word. —Acts 8:4

I recently saw a photograph of people leaving a church after a service. They were carrying Bibles and smiling. As I looked at those men, women, and children, I thought, there goes the church. The building will stay, and it will be referred to as "a church." But those bricks can't preach and those pews can't witness. Only people can do that.

Author R. C. Sproul wrote, "Where the people of God are, there is the church—under the lordship of Christ and indwelt by the Spirit."

This is the essence of the commission Jesus gave to His disciples just before He left them. He promised them power from the Holy Spirit, and said they would be His witnesses in Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and to the end of the earth (Acts 1:8). And when the first-century church of Jerusalem came under persecution, that's what happened. They were scattered and proclaimed the gospel wherever they went (8:4).

When believers in Jesus Christ leave a worship service, the building stays, but God's people—the church—fan out into the community. Throughout the week, they continue to be the church wherever they are in the world—in shops, universities, restaurants, and homes. I wonder, is the world hearing the gospel from the church? By David C. Egner

The witness of the church on earth
Must shine with brightest light
To all who need the second birth
And strength to live aright. —JDB

The world won't go to the church,
so the church must go to the world.

• "Did you overdo it on credit? Give yourself a 'cool-off' period by freezing your charge cards into a block of ice. Now, when you want to buy something on credit, you will have to go home to your freezer to get the card and wait for it to thaw, buying you time to really make the right decision. It won't affect the card at all." — A.L.in Georgia

Recipe Corner

MINI CHICKEN TURNOVERS

FILLING:

3 Tbsp. chopped onion
3 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 3/4 C. shredded
cooked chicken
3 Tbsp. chicken broth
1/4 tsp. each garlic salt,
poultry seasoning,
and pepper
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream
cheese, cubed

PASTRY:

1 1/2 C. all-purpose
flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. paprika
1/2 C. cold butter or
margarine
4 to 5 Tbsp. cold water

In a large skillet, sauté onion in butter until tender. Stir in chicken, broth, seasonings, and cream cheese; set aside. In a bowl, combine flour, salt and paprika; cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Gradually add water, tossing with a fork until a ball forms. On a floured surface, roll out pastry to 1/16" thickness. Cut with a 2 1/2" round cookie cutter. Reroll scraps and cut more circles. Mound a heaping teaspoon of filling on half of each circle. Moisten edges with water; fold pastry over filling and press edges with a fork to seal. Place on ungreased baking sheets. Repeat with remaining pastry and filling. Prick tops with a fork. Bake at 375° for 15-20 minutes or until golden brown. Yield: about 2 1/2 doz. cookies. NOTE: Turnovers can be baked, frozen and reheated at 375° for 5-7 minutes.

Outdoor Opportunities

By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

An Unheralded Member of the Night Shift: The Opossum

Even if you're not an outdoor enthusiast, one simple pleasure you can enjoy during our cold Winter months is hanging a birdfeeder outside your window and keeping it filled. You just never know what species may show up and it's enjoyable watching each one's feeding behavior while learning to identify them by their size and coloration. We can count on at least a dozen different species visiting the feeders outside our backdoor each day and their sorting through the mixed birdseed to get to the sunflower seeds results in milo and cracked corn spilling to the ground. This spillage is targeted by a steady stream of ground feeding birds, along with numerous squirrels. If you're an avid bird feeder, you probably have regular visitors on the "day shift" you are familiar with, but you most likely have a "night shift" who visits your feeders too! Our outdoor lights don't shine directly on our feeders, but they light up the area enough so we can see what's going on. Our nocturnal visitors include highly entertaining flying squirrels, intermittent raccoons, and ever since this past Fall, one rather large opossum who seems to spend time each night between midnight and 4 AM gleaning all the cracked corn he can find from under our feeders.

Now, I have to admit I previously found opossums dopey, dawdling nocturnal wildlife, here in PA. However, about two-years ago I came across studies by wildlife biologists which changed my perspective from mere curiosity to highly respected. Those published studies revealed the average opossum consumes 90% of the ticks they encounter and each opossum eats over 3,000 ticks each year. Probably my greatest concern when I head outdoors in PA is getting bitten by a tick and contracting a tickborne illness, such as Lyme Disease. Anything which reduces the number of ticks present in our forests, fields, and backyards I'm all for and if opossums are living, breathing "tick vacuums," I'm going to be one of their biggest fans.

Maybe you've never given opossums much thought in the past. Allow me to share some interesting facts about them. Their name comes from an Algonquin Indian word, "apasum", which translates "white animal". The opossum is the only marsupial found in North America and like Australia's kangaroos, the young grow in their mother's abdominal pouch. Born when they are only 12 to 13-days old, the hairless, blind, only one-half inch long youngsters use their well-developed front legs to grasp onto their mother's stomach fur and crawl from the birth canal several inches to her pouch. Average litter size is eight and the young latch onto one of the 13 nipples in the fur-lined pouch to continue their development for the next seven weeks. At nine weeks, they begin exiting mother's pouch for short periods and ride around on their mother's back by gripping tightly to her fur with their claws. (Something I've been privileged to see.) Female opossums may have two litters per year with one arriving in late Mar./early Apr. and the second born in late Jun./early Jul. Like many wildlife species, the males play no part in raising their offspring.

Other fascinating details include opossums have 50 teeth in their pointed skulls, which is the most of any North American mammal. They may hiss, growl, or clack their sharp teeth when threatened. If they cannot climb a tree or hide from a threat, they will fake death for a few minutes up to several hours to hopefully discourage a predator from harming them. There is still debate whether the opossum's catatonic state of "playing possum" is voluntary or involuntary. An opossum leaves unique tracks, since it walks around with the five toes of its front feet and four toes of its back feet splayed outward. Their back feet have an additional fifth toe, which functions much like our opposable thumbs for grasping, so their hind footprints appear somewhat like a human handprint. Their hind feet and prehensile tails (capable of grasping and holding objects) allow opossums to be rather agile climbers and rather comical "hangers". Opossums can be found just about everywhere in PA, since they are opportunistic omnivores and scavengers. Their propensity to consume roadkill often results in them becoming roadkill themselves. Animal matter, primarily insects, comprises the largest portion of their diet Spring thru Fall and ties into their recently discovered affinity for ticks. Prolonged subzero temperatures are a limiting factor for opossums and occasionally you'll encounter one in our area with frostbitten ears. Primarily nocturnal, many folks don't have an opportunity to observe an opossum very often. Maybe you have one working the "night shift" at you bird feeder you can watch or possibly when driving you can give one a "brake" to avoid a roadkill. The ticks that opossum could eat may mean one less case of Lyme disease for you or a loved one, making opossums "Good Guys" in my mind! God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors! ©WBB 2022

- 1/4 tsp. baking soda
- 1/3 C. cold butter or margarine
- 1 C. buttermilk
- 1 C. (4 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
- 1 C. diced peeled apples

In a bowl, combine the first five ingredients. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in buttermilk just until moistened. Gently fold in the cheese and apples. Turn onto a floured surface; knead 10 times. Pat into a 9" circle. Cut into eight wedges. Separate wedges and place on a greased baking sheet. Bake at 450° for 12-15 minutes or until golden brown. DEAR PAW'S CORNER:
Last month, I agreed to pet sit for a friend while she and her boyfriend went on vacation. I did this for free because I love pets and want to see if pet sitting as a business is right for me. Bitsy, her 3-year-old cat, was a joy to care for ... the first week. On Monday of the second week, I came to take care of her and Bitsy was laying in the middle of the floor, lethargic. I scooped her up and took her straight to the veterinarian, who thinks she either ingested a toxic houseplant or spoiled food. After fluids and rest at the vet, Bitsy is doing much better. But my friend is angry with me because the vet's bill is very high. She says it's my fault that Bitsy got into her houseplant. I followed my friend's instructions to the letter. Why is it my fault? What should I do? Sign me - Confused in Denver

DEAR CONFUSED:
I'm glad Bitsy is doing better. You did the right thing by taking her in for medical care.

My advice is to give your friend a little time to process everything that happened. You've explained your side already. Hopefully with a little breathing space she will be able to think more clearly and then the two of you can talk and decide what to do.

When you open your pet sitting business, take this as a lesson learned. Spell out terms very clearly, stating that the pet owner is responsible for any vet bills incurred due to illness or injury. You can learn much more through
