Now Here's A Tip

by JoAnn Derson

- Love beans but trying to save a little money? Don't be intimidated by dry beans; just rinse them and chuck them in the slow cooker. Add water according to package directions and cook on low for up to eight hours. After they cool, you can bag them in freezer-safe, zipper-top bags and freeze them for easy use later.

- Two ways to save money on laundry expenses: First, spring and summer are an excellent time to get into line-drying clothes - especially towels and jeans that take longer to dry thoroughly in a dryer. Then, clean out and shorten your dryer's vent hose to make your machine more energy efficient. It cuts down on drying time, too, saving you time AND money.

Grill Master Chicken Wings

1/2 cup soy sauce
1/2 cup Italian-style
salad dressing
3 pounds chicken
wings, cut apart at joints, wing tips
discarded

Sauce:

1/4 cup butter
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1/4 cup hot pepper
sauce, or to taste

Combine 1/2 cup soy sauce, Italian dressing, and chicken wings in a large, zip-top bag. Close bag and refrigerate 4 hours to overnight. Pre-heat an outdoor grill for medium heat. In a small saucepan, melt the butter. Stir in the 1 teaspoon soy sauce and the hot pepper sauce. Turn off heat and reserve. Remove the chicken wings from the marinade and pat dry. Cook the wings on the preheated grill, turning occasionally, until the chicken is well browned and no longer pink, 25 to 30 minutes. Place grilled wings in a large bowl. Pour butter sauce over wings; toss to mix well.

Eggs on the Grill

12 eggs

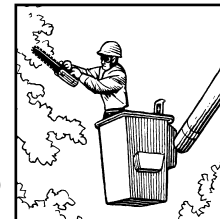

Preheat an outdoor grill for medium high heat. Coat all holes of a muffin pan with cooking spray and crack an egg into each hole. Place on grill and grill over medium high heat for 2 minutes, or to desired doneness. Add toppings or season as desired.

Our Moral Compass

Read: 2 Chronicles 7:1-14

If My people . . . turn from their wicked ways, then I will . . . forgive their sin and heal their land.
2 Chronicles 7:14

When Abraham Lincoln was introduced to author Harriet Beecher Stowe, he reportedly said that she was "the little woman who wrote the book that started this great war."

Although President Lincoln's comment wasn't entirely serious, Stowe's novel Uncle Tom's Cabin was instrumental in abolishing slavery in the US. Its graphic depiction of racism and the injustice of slavery helped lead to the start of civil war. Ultimately, Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation declared that all slaves "shall be free." Thus, Stowe's novel helped to change a nation's moral compass.

Centuries earlier, King Solomon was told about what would change the moral compass of God's people Israel. It was to start with humility and confession. The Lord told Solomon: "If My people who are called by My name will humble themselves, and pray and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land" (2 Chron. 7:14).

As a Christian community, we should first take an inventory of our own personal lives. As we humbly seek God in prayer and repentance of sin, changes begin in our lives. God may then use us to change a nation's moral compass.

Revive us again, Fill each heart with Thy love;
May each soul be rekindled With fire from above.
—Mackay

Outdoor Opportunities By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

Cultivating Curiosity in the Young and in the Young at Heart

Now, this might sound like a strange question, but how much have you changed at your very core from when you were a child until now as an adult? I'm not talking about obvious physical changes that come with physical growth and maturity. I'd like you to give this question some real thought and do a simple exercise. Take a piece of paper and in one column on the left side list six adjectives that best describe childhood you and then in a second column on the right list six adjectives that now accurately describe adult you. Regardless of whether 15-years, 30-years, 60-years, or even more time has gone by between then (childhood you) and now (adult you); are any of the same words in both columns of the paper? Are some of the words almost opposites? When you look over your list, do you like who you've become? Are there childhood qualities you wonder why you've lost them and you'd possibly like to get them back?

Let me be very clear. There are no right or wrong answers to this contemplative exercise. However, it does shed some light on who you are as a person and possibly may have some bearing on the education you pursued, the career path you've taken, and the choices you've made in life. Allow me to share one word that made it onto both columns of my list when I completed this simple exercise myself. That word is Curious, which by definition means, "eager to know or learn something". Now, curious may have made some folks' childhood six adjective lists, but I wonder how often it dropped off their adult six adjective lists. It seems like curiosity is something we recognize and value in children, but frequently dismiss as we get older. I have to admit, curiosity is something that got me started in outdoor writing and inspires me to constantly seek out new places, things, and experiences, and then write about them for others to ponder.

Allow me to share something that fueled my curiosity as a child. Starting about the time I was 4-years old, so we're talking 1967 and on, my favorite TV show was Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom, which transported viewers to wild places around the world. Every Sunday evening at 7 PM on NBC, host Marlin Perkins would narrate, while his "sidekick" Jim Fowler would do most of the difficult fieldwork, like wrestle an alligator or anaconda. In my young mind, I was convinced that when Marlin eventually retired and Jim moved up into the top spot as narrator, I would be the one who got to do the "hands-on" tasks with the wild animals.

Did that childhood fantasy eventually propel me into majoring in Wildlife Science at Penn State? Possibly, it had something to do with my educational decision. However, I can tell you that from 4-years old and on, I was constantly catching and observing toads, frogs, crayfish, minnows, turtles, tadpoles, salamanders, butterflies, lightning bugs, hellgrammites, honey bees, worms, and whatever else I could find and usually place in a glass jar or plastic container (with holes punched in the lid), and then release after showing my family and friends. I would also collect mementos of my trips into the woods, so interesting leaves, rocks, shells, nuts, and other objects went home for subsequent identification.

My purpose behind sharing my curiosity-fueled outdoor ramblings as a youngster is to implore you as an adult with children, grandchildren, nieces & nephews, and other youngsters in your life, to take time now that warmer weather is upon us to let their curiosity run rampant. When was the last time you waded in a small stream, turning over rocks looking for crayfish and other invertebrates? Why not do some bird-watching or wildlife-watching, and help the little ones learn to identify the various species? Consider watching an active bird's nest from an appropriate distance, so your children can see the nest, adult bird(s), eggs, and possibly young chicks; and gain an appreciation for their habitat and life cycle. You too can catch, observe, and release various species of insects, amphibians, and fish much like I did. Take a few moments during the day to watch the clouds, letting their imaginations determine what certain clouds look like. Then at night, do some star-gazing and moon observing, while keeping an eye out for satellites passing overhead. Other curiosity inspired activities children and adults can pursue together include: metal-detecting, finding arrowheads, locating fossils, and the identification of plants, trees, birds, insects, rocks, shells, and other natural objects at a level of detail that is age appropriate. A magnifying glass can be a magnificent tool in the hands of a youngster to unlock the wonders of an ant hill or other insects.

With the constant bombardment children (and adults) receive from electronic devices and media outlets, curiosity-inspired visits to the woods, a park, or the backyard are a healthy respite for individuals of all ages. Who knows what you'll find? Stay curious, my friends! God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors!

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I read your recent column about using caution in the purchase of specific breeds of dogs or adopting from a shelter. Please advise your readers that there is a third option. Almost every breed is assisted by a rescue group, usually handled by breeders. Locating such a group for a specific breed can be done by contacting the American Kennel Club (AKC). We had a wonderful Bernese Mountain Dog that was too small to be a show dog, and a Sheltie whose father was a champion but was still too large to be a show dog. This gives adopters the breed they want and dogs who otherwise would end up in shelters – and possibly be put down – get a family instead. – Kathy F.

DEAR KATHY: Thank you for highlighting this excellent option. The AKC Rescue Network pulls together over 450 rescue groups, dog breeders and specialists in rehabilitation and rescue to save dogs that would otherwise be placed in shelters or euthanized.

Find more information about their work at www.akc.org/akc-rescue-network. Breeds are listed alphabetically to make them easier to locate. Fostering and rehabilitation of dogs through the network is somewhat unique in that dogs stay in the foster/rehab until they are rehomed.

Breeders and dog fanciers are among the most enthusiastic participants in fostering and rehabilitating dogs. They take on the expense and time commitment to work with specific breeds and prepare them for a loving family. But they also get to know the dogs, their temperament and their needs – so that they're matched with the right people.

Check out this network and the work that they do. Thanks again, Kathy.

by Elie's Spiritual Treasures

Psalm 18:35-37

You make your saving help my shield, and your right hand sustains me; your help has made me great. You provide a broad path for my feet, so that my ankles do not give way. I pursued my enemies and overtook them; I did not turn back till they were destroyed.
