Answers*Even Exchange by Donna Pettman

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

Outdoor Opportunities

By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

Casting Some Illumination on the Dark Night Skies Above Us (Part 3 of 3)

When it comes to the outdoors, like many aspects of life, we are often quick to give ourselves and others labels. Depending upon who I am talking to, I may refer to myself as a hunter, fisherman, hiker, backpacker, kayaker, canoeist, cross-country skier, and the list could go on and on. I have to admit though, I have never referred to myself as an amateur astronomer. No, I fancy myself more of a basic night sky watcher, since I don't own a reflecting telescope, and simply do most of my star-gazing and looking up into the dark heavens with either my binoculars, spotting scope, or just my unassisted eyes.

Conversely, the algorithms from Apple News on my smartphone must have identified me at least as an "astronomy enthusiast," since my Science Feed is frequently populated with astronomy-related stories and they keep coming because I read a significant number of them. I learned from a piece there on Feb. 15 the entire lower 48 states of the U.S. will experience a total lunar eclipse the night of Thursday, March 13 and continuing into the early morning hours of March 14. This will be the first total lunar eclipse since 2022 and it will be special, since when the Moon, Earth, and Sun are aligned, the Moon will travel through the Earth's shadow and the long, red wavelengths of light passing through the Earth's atmosphere will project onto the Moon in majestic red or crimson colors, producing what's called a "Blood Moon."

I guess I'm enough of an avid night sky watcher that I already have "Blood Moon lunar eclipse" written down for March 13 on my outdoor-oriented event calendar, which hangs above our computer desk. These calendars of mine have frequently been marked with upcoming astronomical events like pending meteor showers, projected Northern Light displays, anticipated comets, and lunar eclipses. However, if you too look for night sky happenings, you've probably already learned, like I have, that the weather in our area frequently does not cooperate and some of the most eagerly anticipated night observations are often obscured by cloudy conditions when the time comes. In the small village of Pulaski, where I reside, we are blessed to have an abundance of street lights, which makes it great for walking the dog at night or safely traveling through on PA-208 or PA-551. Unfortunately, those same street lights are a curse when it comes to observing the night sky. My "Go To" relatively close dark spot to look for the Northern Lights, constellations, meteor showers, comets, satellites, and lunar eclipses is a short 3.5-mile drive to higher ground up on Heather Heights Road, near the intersection of Orchard and Country Side Lanes. (My apologies to residents in that vicinity for giving away their special Lawrence County night viewing area.)

You may already know this, but many casual observers are not aware some of the brightest stars in the night sky are not actually stars, but the planets. It would be very difficult to inform you in writing, without a chart or diagram, which planet is which in the night sky above. However, Mars, which is often called the "Red Planet," does have a somewhat crimson appearance to it, even to the naked eye. Now, if you want another very special astronomical event to mark on your calendar, you need to write down February 28, 2025 as the date when the very unusual alignment of seven planets will occur. This procession of seven planets, also called the "Planet Parade," will include Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune. Planetary alignments occur when: (1) the planets appear on the same side of the sun as viewed from Earth; (2) this happens because the planets orbit the sun on a flat plane called the ecliptic; (3) the planets will never form a perfectly straight line because their orbits are slightly tilted relative to the ecliptic; and (4) the visibility of a planetary alignment depends on your location on Earth. (Source: Google AI Overview.) Check out online sources like science.nasa.gov or stellarium-web.org for best viewing times in our area. The next 7 planet alignment won't be until late 2028, if you miss it.

If you want to learn more about the stars and constellations, I highly recommend you visit Westminster College's Planetarium sometime. However, I believe everyone should be able to find the North Star (Polaris) on their own. Start by locating the Big Dipper constellation (Ursa Major). Use the two stars at the end of the "cup" of the Big Dipper as pointers. Draw an imaginary line through these stars and extend it six-times further to find the North Star. It is the brightest star at the end of the handle of the Little Dipper constellation (Ursa Minor). The North Star (Polaris) has been used for dependable navigation throughout all of history. In my humble opinion, Psalm 19:1 sums up astronomy: "The heavens declare the glory of God, the skies proclaim the work of his hands."

God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors!

Add Roasted Vegetables to Your Meal Planning

As a kid growing up in California, most of the vegetables I ate (with the exception of steamed artichokes and corn on the cob in the summer) came from a can. Mom was a good cook, but even she would later admit that there wasn't a lot of veggie appeal on our plates.

During my college years, stir-fried vegetables were the rage. I bought a wok, took a class on basic Chinese cooking techniques, and discovered a new world of tastes! Served over brown rice and topped with cashews or sesame seeds, these plates of deliciousness are prepared in no time flat.

While stir-fried meals are still part of our family menus, we love oven-roasted vegetables to balance out a meal. Easy to prepare on a sheet pan and appetizing to look at in an array of colors, the mostly root vegetables cook up crisp on the outside and tender in the middle, often with a sweet intense flavor. Here's my basic recipe:

ROASTED VEGETABLES

Serves 6-8

- 1 medium sweet potato, peeled
- 2 carrots, peeled
- 1 pound Brussels sprouts, halved lengthwise
- 1 red onion, cut into wedges
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh herbs such as parsley, rosemary or thyme (optional)

- Preheat oven to 400 F. Line a large rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper. Cut sweet potato and carrots into 1-inch chunks. Place in a large bowl with Brussels sprouts and onions. Add oil, salt and pepper, then toss well. Place mixture in a single layer on a prepared pan.
- Roast 20-25 minutes, or until all vegetables are tender, turning once with a spatula.
- Serve sprinkled with fresh herbs and an extra drizzle of oil if you wish, or experiment with maple syrup or pomegranate molasses for a dash of sweetness.

VARIATIONS

Roast a pan of cherry tomatoes to amp up the flavor of a pasta salad. Preheat oven to 375 F. Slice cherry tomatoes in half and toss with 1 tablespoon olive oil, 2 minced fresh garlic cloves, and salt and pepper on a parchment-lined baking sheet. Bake 15-20 minutes, then cool. Lightly toss into your prepared pasta salad, and top with fresh herbs and grated Parmesan.

Most chilled leftovers keep their crunch, so dip them in hummus or yogurt-based dressing for a snack. Or reheat it to complement a bowl of greens and delicious grains like quinoa, bulgur, and other wonderful foods at lunchtime. © 2025 Donna Erickson. Distributed by King Features Synd.

Minutes after US President Harry Truman announced the end of World War II, a phone rang in a small clapboard house in Grandview, Missouri. A ninety-two-year-old woman excused herself to take the call. Her guest heard her say, "Hello. . . . Yes, I'm all right. Yes, I've been listening to the radio. . . . Now you come and see me if you can. . . . Goodbye." The elderly woman returned to her guest. "That was [my son] Harry. Harry's a wonderful man. . . . I knew he'd call. He always calls me after something that happens is over."

No matter how accomplished, no matter how old, we yearn to call our parents. To hear their affirming words, "Well done!" We may be wildly successful, but we'll always be their son or daughter.

Sadly, not everyone has this kind of relationship with their earthly parents. But through Jesus, we all can have God as our Father. We who follow Christ are brought into the family of God, for "the Spirit you received brought about your adoption to sonship" (Romans 8:15). We're now "heirs of God and co-heirs with Christ" (v. 17). We don't speak to God as a slave but now have the freedom to use the intimate name Jesus used in His hour of desperate need, "Abba, Father" (v. 15; see also Mark 14:36).

Do you have news? Do you have needs? Call the one who is your eternal home. By Mike Wittmer

What news or needs would you love to share with your earthly parents? What can you tell your heavenly Father? He's listening.

Gracious Father, thank You for being the one to whom I can call on in prayer anytime.

Now Here's A Tip by JoAnn Derson

• Smartphones and computers are notorious for viruses – but I'm thinking of the kind that can make YOU sick. These devices are touched by us constantly. And then we stick them right to our faces! Take the time daily to clean off your device with an alcohol wipe to decontaminate it. Your respiratory and digestive systems will thank you.

Kovels
Antiques and Collecting by Terry and Kim Kovel

Q: Can you tell me about what I call a "foot stool"? It belonged to my grandparents born 1883 and died 1969. After their death, it went to my aunt and after her death, I inherited it in 2008. I have no idea when it was purchased and have recovered it. There are no markings on it and no damage. The solid wood cylinder is 4 inches wide, 14 inches in circumference and 13 inches long. It stands 9 inches tall with four 6-inch feet at an angle, and with two 3-inch-long knobs at each end to make it about 20 inches long total. Everyone who sees it remarks how interesting it is!

A: Your foot stool sounds like a gout stool. Gout is a form of arthritis that can cause joint pain, especially in the ankles and toes. In the 18th and 19th centuries, there were several styles of gout stools, designed to keep weight off the feet and relieve the pain. Some were made like miniature rockers. Yours sounds like a "rolling pin" type, so-called because of its shape. Some of them had features like a rotating cylinder to massage the foot or ankle, or adjustable legs to get the stool to the right height for different users. Some are still made today. Antique gout stools by unknown makers usually sell for under $100.
