DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Why are so many people opting for small dogs these days instead of big dogs? That seems to be all I see when folks walk their dogs around here. A small dog won't protect you or your home. – Bobby T., Oak Ridge, TN

DEAR BOBBY: While it may seem that most dog owners are choosing smaller breeds, the number of small vs. large dogs varies greatly depending on where you live. So you may observe that most of your immediate neighbors have small dogs – but their popularity is not as universal as you think.

The American Kennel Club, for example, annually lists the most popular dogs by number of registrations per breed. In 2023, the most recent year of published data, the French bulldog was the most popular registered breed in the U.S. However, among the top 10 breeds, only four – including the French bulldog, Dachshund, Beagle and Bulldog – could be classified as “small.” The remaining six most popular dogs, including the Rottweiler, Golden Retriever and German Shorthaired Pointer, are all large breeds.

Not all U.S. households that own dogs have registered breeds, of course, The American Veterinary Medical Association in 2024 reported that just under half of U.S. households own dogs, while 32.1% are cat owners. So, while the French bulldog may be the most popular AKC-registered pet, that statistic doesn't take into account all of the dogs that are being walked through their neighborhoods nationwide.

Security-wise, having a dog of any size can be a deterrent for potential intruders (or attackers). Large breeds, often gentle giants, can deter people with bad intentions easily, but smaller breeds should not be underestimated. ©2025 King Features

- LEGO bricks withstand compression better than concrete! An ordinary plastic LEGO brick can support the weight of 375,000 other bricks before it fails, which would theoretically allow you to build a tower nearing 3.5 km in height, but scaling that up to house-size bricks would prove too cost prohibitive.
- A comet smells like rotten eggs, urine, burning matches and almonds.

Outdoor Opportunities

Muskrat Love...and Other Examples of
Boy Meets Girl in the Animal World (Part 2 of 2)

Do you remember the good old team-building exercise known as the “trust fall?” You may have first encountered this exercise at school, in scouts, at camp, in a corporate workshop, or in a church youth group, where a “volunteer” who is either standing on the ground or up on some sort of chair or podium, is directed to fall backwards and trust their peers will catch them before they strike the ground;. What you may not know is there is a unique version of the “trust fall” out in nature? In fact, it is part of the mating ritual of bald eagles. Commonly referred to as their “cartwheel courtship flight” or their “death spiral”, a male and female bald eagle will fly several hundred or well over a thousand feet in the air, lock their talons together, and then fall to the ground in a tumbling cartwheel fashion, only to separate and catch themselves in controlled flight very close to the ground. For some witnesses, they believe it is one of the most amazing things they’ve ever seen in their entire lives, when it comes to the behavior of wild animals.

I have never personally seen the bald eagles’ “cartwheel courtship flight,” but I keep trying to catch the spectacle for myself. Two years ago, I was walking on PA SGL 150, adjacent to our home in Pulaski, and while I was down about a mile at the farthest field along the Shenango River, I watched two bald eagles fly together in synchronous flight, much like either the Thunderbirds (U.S. Air Force) or Blue Angels (U.S. Navy) aerial demonstration teams, for almost 10-minutes. They paralleled each other’s movements in close proximity, but they never performed a “death spiral” as I watched, much to my disappointment.

That hasn’t kept me from trying again. Back on Sat., Mar. 8, my son and I went for a 5-mile walk on Game Lands 150 with our dog. We were only a ¼-mile in past the parking area, when my son noticed a large bird flying over, just above treetop level. As soon as I looked up, I saw its white head and tail, making for the easy identification of a bald eagle. That’s when we noticed to the right, four additional large birds circling in a “kettle,” much like some species of hawks will do. We soon identified what we believed to be a family of bald eagles flying together, since there were two mature bald eagles and two immature bald eagles (they lack the white head and tail feathers). It is our guess that the bald eagle family of four was simply migrating through and the solitary bald eagle keeping an eye on them was one of our resident pair, which we see on a regular basis. While we saw a total of seven bald eagles during our 5-mile hike, we’re thinking we happened to see the same solitary bald eagle three different times at three different locations, since we were taking our hike within his home territory and he was checking us out.

Visual observation isn’t the only way to successfully identify an avian species. On Wed. evening, Mar. 12, I decided to take our dog for a walk around 8 PM, since it was a nice evening. When we got down by the River Valley Complex (the former Pulaski Elementary School), I heard the distinct “Peent” call of an American woodcock coming from the baseball field across the street in the darkness. If you are not familiar with the American woodcock, it is a game bird, roughly the size of a large pigeon or a quail, with mottled brown camouflaged feathers, and a long bill (2.5 to 3-inches) that it uses to probe into the ground for earthworms. Besides their “Peent” call, woodcock are known for their “bobbing dance” walk and especially the courtship flight of the male. This aerial display, often at dusk or dawn, is called the woodcock’s “Sky Dance” as distinct sounds are produced as air passes through the male’s modified wing feathers. As they ascend up to 300-feet in the air, the wings make a twittering sound and on the circling descent, they make a chirping sound. If you’ve never seen or heard a woodcock’s “Sky Dance,” you need to head afield this Spring to take it in. Some PA State Parks offer nature programs afield to observe this awesome natural exhibition. If nothing else, I encourage you to check out YouTube videos of a woodcock “Peenting,” bobbing as they walk, and their “Sky Dance.” While there, also watch a video or two of the bald eagles’ “cartwheel courtship flight” or “death spiral,” since my words alone won’t do them justice.

You may have heard coyotes howling in Feb. during their breeding season. Recently, you’ve probably noticed an increase in road-killed skunks as they too seek partners. On land, in the water, and overhead, you’ve probably seen courtship behavior of resident Canada geese as they pair up. If you are lucky, up in “the Big Woods,” you might hear the ruffed grouse, our PA State Bird, drumming as they aggressively beat their wings. Other recent migratory arrivals I’ve seen include wood ducks, killdeer, and grackles. All the animals are getting ready to raise their next generation!

God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors!

Zap Popcorn in the Microwave for Healthy Snacking Anytime

Just about everyone loves popcorn, right? Whether you're outdoors at a ballgame, at the zoo, or at a neighborhood park concert, it's portable and easy to take wherever you go. When you settle into a theater seat, popcorn and a movie naturally go better together.

When I crave a snack in the midafternoon, a bowl of popcorn is a favorite. It's low in calories and tastes great, so what's not to like? And it's a casual welcome treat for anyone who stops by, even the neighbor kids! They happily grab a handful after school and continue with their active play, with a "Thanks, Donna!" in between munches.

When we host a last-minute barbeque at our house and I'm focused on getting food on the table, I don't fret about appetizers. Along with simple, crowd-pleasing cheese, crackers, nuts and fruit on a board, I'll set a giant bowl of popcorn to the side. It's usually gone in minutes.

When my three kids were young, I popped it using the traditional method - on the stove in a big pot with kernels swimming in a glob of oil. It worked, but there was always a greasy stove, pan and lid to clean up. Nowadays, I don't have an air popper, nor do I buy the store-bought, butter-laden microwave bags with too much salt for my taste.

Instead, my new strategy uses the microwave, but I pop good-quality popcorn in a bowl instead of a bag. I can have 5 cups in just about 5 minutes. Yes, this homemade, easy recipe is the best and my go-to! A dab of oil, quality kernels, no fuss.

It's easy, healthy and perfect every time. Just add personal toppings when it's done for more popcorn pizzazz.

EASY MICROWAVE POPCORN

Makes 5 cups

- 1/4 cup fresh popcorn
kernels

- 1/2 teaspoon canola or vegetable oil

In a microwave-safe glass bowl that's 6 cups or larger in size, kids can measure and stir popcorn kernels with oil.

Cover the bowl with a microwave-safe plate and microwave on high for about 4-6 minutes (microwaves and popcorn vary), or until there are only 3 seconds between pops.

An adult should carefully remove the bowl and top plate with oven mitts, as it will be very hot. Pour popcorn into a serving bowl, season to taste and enjoy! ©2024 Donna Erickson. Distributed by King Features Synd.

Our Daily Bread

Our True Refuge Is God

He is my refuge and my fortress, my God, in whom I trust. Psalm 91:2 READ Psalm 91:1-2, 14-16

After his wife died, Fred felt he could endure the pain as long as he had his Monday breakfasts with his buddies. His fellow retirees lifted his spirits. Whenever sadness came, Fred would think about the next time he'd enjoy their company again. Their corner table was his safe place from grief.

Over time, however, the gatherings ended. Some friends became ill; others passed away. The emptiness led Fred to seek solace in the God he'd met in his youth. "I have breakfast by myself now," he says, "but I remember to hold on to the truth that Jesus is with me. And when I leave the diner, I don't leave to face the rest of my days alone."

Like the psalmist, Fred discovered the safety and comfort of God's presence: "He is my refuge . . . in whom I trust" (Psalm 91:2). Fred came to know safety not as a physical place to hide, but as the steadfast presence of God that we can trust and rest in (v. 1). Both Fred and the psalmist found that they didn't have to face difficult days alone. We too can be assured of God's protection and help. When we turn to Him in trust, He promises to respond and be with us (vv. 14-16).

Do we have a safe place, a "corner table" we go to when life is hard? It won't last but God will. He waits for us to go to Him, our true refuge.
By Karen Huang

When life is hard, what's your safe place? How can you turn to and trust God as your refuge?

Dear God, You're my safe place. Yours is the presence that will never leave me to fend for myself. Your help and protection surround me always.

Even Exchange

Even Exchange by Donna Pettman

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

The Garden Bug
Coffee grounds

Used coffee grounds are relatively high in nitrogen and also contain potassium and phosphorus. They are acidic, so plants like blueberries and roses will love them. They improve soil structure and water-holding capacity, and are a great additive for compost containers or worm bins. Applying coffee grounds directly onto the soil around most plants is usually fine, but if too much is dumped together in one spot, the fine particles may form a clump that prevents water and air from reaching plant roots. - Brenda Weaver
