Have You Found Your Happy Place?
How Would You Know?

If you don't think Artificial Intelligence (AI) is impacting our world and your life at this very moment, guess again. Something as simple as the Apple News feed on your iPhone is tracked by an algorithm that provides "suggestions" for additional reading, based on what you have already opened and read. For instance, under the category of "Health & Wellness," my Apple News feed has recently sent me several articles about the many health benefits of spending time outdoors. As a whole, Americans are spending more time indoors staring at screens (computers, smartphones, TVs), which contributes to a sedentary lifestyle that often brings long-term adverse health conditions. You'd be surprised at how many research studies at major universities are exploring the physical and psychological benefits of getting additional sunlight, fresh air, and exposure to natural settings. The myriad of positive impacts can be quantified both objectively and subjectively by measuring heart rate, blood pressure, VO2 Max, inflammation, blood markers, stress levels, mood, and other wellness criteria. The "Go Outside and Play" guidance we were told by our parents years ago appears to have solid empirical evidence supporting its timeless validity.

Back in June 2024, my wife gave me a Fitbit Inspire 3 activity tracker as a birthday gift. I've primarily used it to track my daily step totals, but I've recently noticed another metric it tracks that ties into the many studies I've read about the health benefits of spending time outdoors. From almost a year and half of observations, I know my resting heart rate is typically 60 to 62 beats per minute. The fascinating change I've encountered numerous times this Fall is when I'm out in the woods hunting, either sitting in a tree stand, on a rock, or hidden amongst a clump of trees, just being one with nature and keenly focused with all my senses on what is going on around me, when I've checked my Fitbit to see what time it is, I've remarkably noticed my heart rate slows down to a range of 48 to 52 beats per minute. Based on what I'm observing and what I've read in the literature, it substantiates what my wife has been saying all along, when I say I'm going hunting, she says, "You're headed to your Happy Place." I'm sure I'm not the only one this physiological change occurs to when the outside world is turned off and you're in the woods.

I'm probably in a very small minority here, but I find it very relaxing to make my way into the woods in the darkness with the goal of arriving at my stand an hour before first shooting light. I like to use those 60-minutes to deliberately layer up in the required clothing, organize my gear, and settle in. Listening to the sounds of the forest coming to life and watching the ever-increasing quantity of light makes the time go by quickly. Sometimes, in the predawn darkness, you get to observe a raccoon or porcupine stumbling back from their nocturnal ramblings. Other times, you get to watch a squirrel, pileated woodpecker, or chipmunk coming out of their den or nest to greet the new day. Occasionally, I've had the good fortune of having a deer show up within a few minutes of first shooting light and I've released the first arrow/bolt or fired the first shot of the new day. What many non-hunters probably wouldn't understand is while the objective of going hunting is to harvest game, the actual act of taking a deer or other intended quarry does not solely determine whether or not you've had a good day afield. Thus, the logic is captured in the old bumper sticker, "A Bad Day of Hunting is Still Better Than a Good Day at Work." The fact that you were out in the woods, taking in all the sights and sounds, possibly smells (believe it or not, I'm pretty good at smelling deer from a considerable distance when they are upwind), often tastes (PB&J, chocolate bar, apple, or hot tea from a thermos), and frequently touches (the roughness of tree bark, the texture of a rock, or the smoothness of an acorn) all make for a rewarding, memorable day you'll want to repeat often.

Maybe your Happy Place isn't out hunting. Possibly, it's on your boat or in your kayak. It could be when you are walking or hiking on your favorite trail or in your preferred park. Then again, it might be a vista or overlook, where you can take in a wide expanse of the landscape and just feel invigorated and inspired. Often, it could be up at camp or just out in your own backyard amongst the trees and with the furred and feathered wildlife that visit. I encourage you to find your Happy Place outdoors. If you have a fitness tracker, see for yourself if your heart rate goes down from the calming effect. By personal observation, determine if you are in a better mood, less stressed, and feel more alive. Why wait until the New Year to make a resolution? Make getting outdoors, more often, even if it's only for few minutes, a priority. Your health and wellness deserve a Happy Place!

God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors!

Mind-Blowing Teaching

My son . . . keep my commands in your heart.
Proverbs 3:1. READ Proverbs 3:1-12

Sophia Roberts witnessed open heart surgery for the first time when she was around eleven years old. While that might seem a bit young for a child to view such a medical procedure, you need to know that her dad, Dr. Harold Roberts Jr., is a heart surgeon. In 2022, Sophia—now thirty years old and a surgery resident physician—teamed up with her dad to perform a successful aortic valve replacement. Harold said, “What can be better? I taught this kid how to ride a bicycle. . . . Now, to get to teach her how to operate on a human heart is pretty mind-blowing.”

While few of us will teach surgery skills to a child, Solomon describes the importance of instructing something else to the next generation—to honor God and His ways. The wise king passionately shared with his child what he’d learned in his relationship with God: “My son, . . . trust in the Lord with all your heart” (Proverbs 3:1, 5), “fear the Lord” (v. 7), “honor the Lord” (v. 9), and “do not despise the Lord’s discipline” (v. 11). Solomon knew that God “loves” and “delights in” His children who willingly receive His correction and guidance (v. 12).

Let’s teach the next generation what it means to trust, revere, honor, and be humbly molded by our awesome, amazing God. To partner with Him in doing so is a vital privilege and, well, pretty mind-blowing! By Tom Felten

REFLECT and PRAY

Why is it vital for you to share what you’ve learned about God with the next generation? What will you pass on today?

Dear God, please help me to share Your loving ways with both young and old today.

• Pixar technical director Galyn Susman, while on maternity leave, was notified that 90% of the movie "Toy Story 2" had accidentally been deleted, and the studio's on-site backup had failed. Fortunately, she had copies of the film on her laptop, which was wrapped in blankets and carefully carried back to the studio.

Now Here's A Tip

by JoAnn Derson

• When hammering a nail, try this save-your-finger trick: Use a clothespin to hold the nail steady, and then use your hammer to drive it in. Hammering into the wall? Push the nail through a strip of cardboard, and hold the cardboard over the right spot. No more banged up fingers or thumbs!

• Got plastic packaging that is a pain to get open? Use your can opener, run along the sides, to break into your packages. It works!

Strange But True

by Lucie Winborne

• Scientists trained rats to drive cars (custom-made from plastic cereal containers and small wires), and while the rodents' original motivation was Froot Loops, they surprisingly appeared to love going for joy rides as well.
