Outdoor Opportunities

By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

Where History, Heritage, Craftmanship, & Marksmanship Come Together (Part 1 of 3)

We recently proudly celebrated America's Semiquincentennial! Which, whether you knew it or not, is the grammatically proper way to say 250th Anniversary. In the midst of the celebration, did you give any thought to the eventual armed conflict with Great Britain our Declaration of Independence set in motion? I did and as a military retiree, my thoughts soon turned to the weapons they used at the time. The ignition source of the day was the flintlock and as a present-day avid flintlock hunter, I have tremendous respect for those who adeptly employed their flintlock rifles back then as hunting tools and as instruments of war.

As a career U.S. Army Field Artillery Officer, my professional military branch education was based on the physics and fundamentals of ballistics, which includes: internal ballistics (what happens to the projectile inside the bore after powder ignition), external ballistics (what happens to the projectile in flight), and terminal ballistics (what happens to the projectile when it reaches its target). I think that is why I am so fascinated with flintlock rifles, because effectively shooting them boils down to basic internal, external, and terminal ballistics in action. Since I joined the PA Outdoor Writers Association in 2013, I have gravitated to other professional outdoor communicators who are also flintlock aficionados and who passionately convey their knowledge, expertise, respect, and love of shooting and hunting with flintlock rifles with others. My intent is to learn from them as much as I can. Unequivocally, our foremost expert is Dave Ehrig, PA's "Mr. Black Powder", who has authored four books on the subject and serves as the editor of "Muzzle Blasts", the official publication of the National Muzzle Loading Rifle Assn.

I had the privilege of sitting with Dave Ehrig at our POWA Banquet in State College in May 2022 and he informed me about the upcoming inaugural Gunmakers Fair at the fairgrounds in Kempton, PA (Berks County). Prior to the pandemic, the Gunmakers Fair was held for over 35-years on the grounds of nearby Dixon Muzzleloading Shop, but the owners' age and health necessitated the Gunmakers Fair moving elsewhere in order to go on. For me, July is a busy month with our family reunion and other travels, but after missing the first four Gunmakers Fairs at Kempton (2022-2025), I decided I definitely needed to make the nearly five-hour drive out to Eastern PA to experience my first one in 2026. The one-of-a-kind event ran July 24-26, 2026 at the Kempton Fairgrounds and I arranged my schedule to attend the entire opening day from 8:30 AM to 5 PM. I had it in my mind that probably the only people I would know at the Gunmakers Fair would be Dave Ehrig and our mutual good friend from POWA, Dennis Scharadin.

Any preconceived notions I had were completely blown out of the water when I drove up to the entrance to the Kempton Fairgrounds and was immediately greeted at the gate by Lawrence County's own muzzleloading phenom, Vickie Shaffer, and her husband, Mark Zeigler. I've had the privilege of meeting Vickie and Mark several times over the years at First Baptist Church's Annual Sportsmen's Dinner, where she is a perennial seminar speaker on flintlock shooting and hunting, enthusiastically sharing her vast expertise as a member of the competitive PA Flintlock Team. As soon as I parked, I immediately knew I was in the right place from the wafting acrid aroma of the blacksmiths' coal-burning forges and the many living historians walking about in appropriate colonial attire and accoutrements.

Do you remember the Ortega Taco Shell commercial going back to 1979 that ran through the 1980's? It involved two people arguing with one adamantly saying, "I like making them," and the other adversary replying, "I like eating them." The commercial ended with the catch phrase, "Fun to make, Fun to eat." When it comes to flintlock rifles, I have always been a proponent of "I like shooting them" and "Fun to shoot." Well, I quickly learned at the Gunmakers Fair (hence its appropriate name), there is a passionate, dedicated, extensive community of folks from across the United States who put their heart, soul, and craftsmanship into building flintlock rifles that are nothing less than functional works of art with their beautiful wood grained stocks, elaborate engraving, detailed patch boxes, and mechanically tuned locks. The skill of these craftsmen at the Apprentice, Journeyman, and Master levels screams, "I like making them," and "Fun to make;" but I soon learned most of the builders are also equally enthusiastic shooters.

I had the privilege of attending five seminars during the course of the day and tried to visit every booth, display, and vendor I could. Over the next two weeks, I will be sharing what I learned about the rifles that helped bring America into existence and our proud heritage!

God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors!

Strange But True

by Lucie Winborne

- The first Europeans to discover the Great Lakes named them the "Sweetwater Seas" and believed that China bordered their shores.
- According to facial recognition software, LEONARDO da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" is 83% happy, 9% disgusted, 6% fearful and 2% angry.
- One acre of peanuts can make 30,000 peanut butter sandwiches.

Our Daily Bread Bibles in the Back Seat

"Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit," says the Lord Almighty.
Zechariah 4:6. READ Zechariah 4:1-7

Andrew's Volkswagen stopped, and the guards walked over. He prayed as he had many times in the past: "God, when You were on earth, You made blind eyes see. Now, please make seeing eyes blind." The guards searched the car, saying nothing about the Bibles in the luggage. Andrew crossed the border, taking his cargo to those who couldn't own a Bible.

Andrew van der Bijl, or Brother Andrew, relied on God's power for the seemingly impossible task God had called him to—taking the Scriptures to countries where Christianity was illegal. "I'm an ordinary guy," he said, emphasizing his limited education and lack of funds. "What I did, anyone can do." Today, his organization, Open Doors International, serves persecuted believers in Jesus worldwide.

When Zerubbabel, the governor of Judah, faced the seemingly impossible task of rebuilding the temple after the Jews returned from exile, he was discouraged. But God reminded him not to rely on human power or might, but on His Spirit (Zechariah 4:6). He encouraged him through a vision given to the prophet Zechariah of lamps supplied with oil from nearby olive trees (vv. 2-3). Just as the lamps could burn because of the continual supply of oil, Zerubbabel and the Israelites could do God's task by relying on His continuous supply of power.

As we rely on God, may we trust Him and do what He calls us to do. By Karen Huang

REFLECT and PRAY

How can you rely on God's Spirit? How might the vision of the olive trees supplying the lamps with oil encourage you?

Holy Spirit, please help me to rely on You.
